PUT OUT OF THE COURT-ROOM

Judge Blodgett Offended by Applause from Miss Phœbe Couzins's Friends.

Her Mother and Several Prominent Women Among the Number-Told to "Get Out" by the Marshal at the Behest of the Judge.

CHICAGO, July 2.- The climax in the suit of Phæbe Couzins to retain the secretaryship of the board of lady managers of the world's fair was reached this afternoon in Judge Blodgett's court. The case had been on hearing all day, and Col. Robert Rae, attorney for Miss Couzins, was just closing an eloquent appeal on behalf of his client. He pictured Miss Couzins's honorable career, and the positions of distinction she had tilled, and referred to her aged mother, who was present, as a woman who had risked her life in defense of the Union during the war, and would up by saying, in a voice pitched to the highest key, "Let justice be done, though the heavens fall." This was too much for Miss Couzins's lady friends, a half dozen of whom had sat spell-bound by the eloquence of the counsel. In front of Colonel Rae sat Dr. Augusta Kimball, a lady physician and a woman suffragist of some repute, who had been taking copious notes of the proceed-ings. Behind the attorney sat Miss Couz-ins's mother, with Miss Bulline, the deposed secretary's amanuensis. Dr. Lucy White, daughter of Judge White, and several other ladies. No sooner had the speaker finished talk-ing than all the ladies began to applaud with their hands. The hand-elapping made a great noise in the almost empty courtroom. It was interrupted in an instant by Judge Blodgett, who grew red in the face and said, "Stop it, stop it! This is no town-meeting. Mr. Marshal, clear the room." Deputy Marshal George Jones hastened from his seat and advanced toward the now very quiet women. He walked boldly up to the row of ladies, and, waving his hand toward toward the door, told them to "get out, get out!" The ladies rose, even to Miss Couzins's aged mother.

Ex-Judge Waite was on his feet in an instant. "Your Honor," he said, in pained surprise at the court's action, "you can see that the applause was only the impulse of a

"It don't matter, Judge Waite," replied the court, now thereaghly angered. "Let those people leave the room The "people" filed out, looking rather abashed. They were thoroughly frightened, but not so much so as to prevent a little meeting in the corridor. They claimed they were not used to court-room etiquette. None of them returned to face Judge Blod-

Previous to this dramatic little episode the arguments were made. Edward Walker, for the world's fair directory and board of control, argued that Miss Couzins never held an office, but was subject to the same rules that govern the other employes, such as type-writers and stenographers. Colonel Rae and ex-Judge Waite made eloquent pleas for Miss Couzins, and some strong au-thorities were presented in support of their case, notably a decision of a Philadelphia court in a suit of a similar nature begun during the centennial exposition, in which the court sided with the deposed official. Judge Blodgett took the case under advise-

CHAINED THIRTY YEARS.

Ornel and Outrageous Method Adopted by a Preacher to Secure His Rival's Wife.

MILAN, Tenn., July 2.-A terrible tale comes from the hills of Henderson county, which has some points of historic interest linked to it. Some summer tourists, while at Hickory Flat Springs, had occasion to visit the famous cave of the ante-bellum outlaw and robber, John A. Murrell, and unearthed the mystery which is exciting much talk among the people of this section. As given by one of the party, the following story is full of romance, and implicates Jake Hyde, a well-known preacher of Hick-

"We were a little backward about entering the robber's den at first," said the tourcry, mingled with moans, which seemed to us as if some one was in torture. We went on toward the object to investigate and, winding about the cave, we came to an iron door fastened into the rock, and covered by groans and cries, and some of the party went back for chisels and hammers to break

"These proved of no avail, but a giant blast of powder removed the door, and flying open revealed the form of a man chained to the rocky floor. He was unconscious, and great stripes were on his back.
We released him, and bore him to the open air as quickly as possible. He revived very little until we carried him to camp.

"The man gave his name as Zachariah Wilson, and said he had been chained inside the cave for thirty years by Rev. Jacob Hyde. There seems to have been a lover's Hyde. There seems to have been a lover's rivalry between the two many years ago. Both men courted the same girl, and Wilson won her. Hyde entered the ministry to drown his grief, but was unable to do it. By some means he entrapped Wilson to the cave, near Hickory Flat, and there imprisoned him. He then represented to Mrs. Wilson that her husband was dead, and, after due consideration for her alleged dead, she consented to marry Hyde. For dead, she consented to marry Hyde. For thirty years this old, gray-haired preacher has fed the chained prisoner, and no taint has ever attached itself to him. The prisoner Wilson is in a terrible condition, and will not live long. The preacher Hyde has

Lost His Reason on a Train. WASECA, Minn., July 2.—On the arrival of the east-bound train yesterday Sheriff Reynolds took from the sleeper a man in a violent state of insanity, who proved to be Andrew Row, the owner of valuable min-ing property in the neighborhood of Ward-ner. Ida. He told the sheriff, in an inco-herent way, that he was on his way to Europe. On his person were found drafts on Spokane Falls banks for $1,050, money to the amount of $350, a gold watch and a silver watch. He expressed a desire to die, and asked the sheriff in what way he proposed to kill him. His valise was probably lost or stolen on the train. He said it con-tained a note for $500, deeds of mining property in Idaho, valuable specimens from the mines and a revolver. Sheriff Reynolds has telegraphed his friends in Wisconsin and Idaho, and will hold him at the county

FAMILY OF MURDERERS.

One of the Gang Captured After Being Be trayed by His Brother-in-Law. Knoxviile (Tenn.) Dispatch in the Memphis Appeal,

Berry Turner, one of the noted Turner gang, of Bell county, Kentucky, was arrested near Pineville Saturday and brought to ist, "but went in. We hadn't gone more than one hundred yards when we heard wild, unearthly shrieks, which fairly froze our blood. Most of us wanted to turn back and leave the place, but our leader halted us. Again and again we heard that weird who was stopping at his brother-in-laws, got in a chair to get shaved a signal would be given and the sheriff, who was concealed in the house would who was concealed in the house, would cover him with a gun. The scheme worked and Turner was arrested. He was taken to Jacksboro, Campbell county, Tennessee, to-night by Sheriff Taylor, where he will be held for the $700 reward. It is broadly grated bars. We could hear the moan plain new and we halloed to the person inside the dungeon. We could hear nothing but the dungeon. We could hear nothing but be released. Turner has killed six persons in his life, one being a woman, whom he hit in the head with a hatchet. She died about three weeks afterward from the effects of the blow. Turner takes his arrest coolly, and does not seem the villain he is. He was under arrest about two years ago, but escaped from jail. He said to-day that the meanest thing he ever did was to rob a man of $85.15. The last man that Turner killed was his cousin. He and his father and brothers have a record of having killed ninety-six people. Turner is only thirtyeight years old, and a tine physical man. Much difficulty was experienced at Pine-ville yesterday to keep a mob from lynching him. His sister came to Knoxville with him. She says she is going to kill her brother-in-law, who betrayed him, as he is too mean to live.

Chapel and Congregation Cursed by a Priest MONTREAL, July 2.-A tremendous sensation has been caused among Roman Catholies in this province by the cursing by the l Rev. Father Savard, a redemptorist, of a temporary chapel erected by two hundred Catholics of the parish of Maskinonge, who were dissatisfied with the site of the new parish church and refused to attend mass there. While they were at prayers on St. Peter and Paul's day Father Savard, attired in his vestments and bearing a crici-fix, entered the chapel and implored them to return to the church. On their refusing to do so he pronounced the customary anathema on the church. Many women fainted in the scene which followed, and several men assaulted the priest and eject-

CORNER ON PORK

During the War, when the 11th Indiana (Zouave) Regiment was in camp at Padu cah, Ky., a number of musicians, among them the bass-frummer, concluded to do a little foraging on their own account. They killed a pig, which was at that time strictly against orders, and to get it into camp unnoticed put it in the bass drum. As they came in the bugle sounded for dress parade. Here was a pretty pickle, 150 pounds of pig and the thermometer 95 Fahr. in the Sun! A comrade assisted to carry the dram as they marched along the regimental front, drops of perspiration large as marbles rolling down their faces. The Colonel's attention was attracted by their staggering walk and the dull thud of the drum-stick. They were ordered to report at headquarters, and on explaining that a generous piece was intended for the Colonel, were allowed to go un-punished. The pig incident figured in the stories of the regiment for many years
